

Enduring Faith: Wang Mingdao and the Emergence of the House Church Movement in China

Sponsored by China Ministries International of Canada, Voice of the Martyrs Canada, and China Aid

Wang Mingdao is considered a founding father of the Chinese house church movement. Wang successfully established the Christian Tabernacle with no external influence, refusing to compromise theological principles. He resolutely withstood attempts to undermine his faith, including efforts to persuade him to join government-sanctioned Christian churches from both the Japanese during their occupation of northern China and the Chinese government. Subsequently, Wang was imprisoned by the Chinese Communist government for more than 20 years.
